

Roadshow in Longyear City!

This weekend, the team behind Svalbard.money is visiting Svalbard to promote the project and anchor the project within the local community. Among other activities, the project was presented in front of a significant crowd in the local library. Anchoring the project within the local community has always been a priority of Svalbard Money, and the presentation received rave reviews from the audience.

During the upcoming days the team will embark upon an expedition to explore the abandoned Soviet mining town Grumant City of vital importance to the website - stay tuned for more content in the months to come!
